Woodstock selectmen accused of selective enforcement; local press of bullying

By ALISON ALOISIO

The owner of a house that was the subject of a "dangerous building" hearing in Woodstock Tuesday accused selectmen of "selective enforcement" of the town's property maintenance ordinance.

And other attendees at the hearing accused town officials and local newspapers, including The Citizen, of "bullying" the owner of the building in question. "Since May, Code Enforcement Officer Joelle Corey Whitman has been working to get the South Woodstock property owned by John E. Cox III cleaned up, noting that the unoccupied Route 26 house has had problems that include openings making it accessible to people and animals, a dangerous deck and a partially-collapsed barn. She said she had been in touch with Cox off and on through the summer about taking care of the issues, with good communication at the start. In July, she noted, a potential buyer had started some work.

On Sept. 28 Whitman sent

Cox a certified letter about a hearing on the building's fate planned for Oct. 18, but it was never picked up or signed, she said. She then tried to call him but his voice mailbox was full. In mid-October, she put a legal notice in local newspapers about a new hearing on Nov. 15.

Whitman said she saw a backhoe on the site Oct. 25, and on Nov. 2 the barn had been half-demolished.

"From May 24 until Oct. 25," said Whitman, "very little had been done other than the excavation in the front of the building."

Cox acknowledged he knew the certified letter was about the house, but did not respond to it because he had been very busy working.

He said he had injured his back during the summer, and had told Whitman that. He also said he had called and left a message for her after that, which Whitman said was the first of October. "But nothing has happened," said Whitman. "I saw a backhoe one night working."

Cox said he had taken care

State OKs $1.3 million construction bond for upgrades at Telstar

By ALISON ALOISIO

The state has approved a $1.3 million construction bond for possible upgrades at the Telstar complex, SAD 44 Supt. Dave Murphy told the School Board Monday.

Approval does not mean the district is required to use the money. If it does, the money would be available interest-free or at a very low percentage.

The funds, in the form of a Quality School Construction Bond, could serve as a match to an equal amount of district money, which has been put aside by voters over recent years for capital improvements.

Earlier this year an energy audit recommended significant work be done to upgrade the 45-year-old complex's energy efficiency.

Voters would have to approve any projects and the expenditure of the money. Murphy said such approval could be sought next June, at the time of the school budget vote. The board's Finance Committee will discuss options and return to the board in December regarding possible next steps in a proposal, he said.

In another report related to the condition of the Telstar complex, Murphy said students have been moved from the sixth-grade wing of the middle school to other rooms because of an air-quality problem, caused by elevated carbon dioxide levels. The administration is researching steps to correct the problem.

In other business Monday, directors unanimously approved continued sanctioning of the girls' soccer program at Telstar High School. The program has operated as a club sport for several years, and the board's action paves the way for it to become a varsity sport beginning next year.

In personnel issues, Murphy announced the retirement, effective Dec. 31, of longtime building and grounds director Burnie Rice, who served the district for 38 years.

The board later went into executive session to consider a grievance from the Telstar Educators Association, then voted in open session 11-5 to deny it. Murphy said he could provide no details on the issue.

Textures from the 'Goofy' side of a life

"His nickname was 'Goofy,'" said Mo Ginther (left foreground), of her longtime companion Mark Wight, who died unexpectedly last year, at the age of 52. The "Texture of Life Quilt" here was created by Donna Sheerin Gillies from Wight's clothing and other personal items. It was one of several quilts designed and sewn by Gillies and displayed in a presentation last Thursday for the Down Home Senior Citizens, in Gould Academy's McLaughlin Science Center. Gillies said she believes "every closet holds a story; it holds our personalities." The quilt was the third Gillies did for Ginther. Gillies presented it in a Budweiser Beer carton. "Because she knew he loved Budweiser," Ginther said. "The amazing thing is that she sits down and talks to you and asks questions. I brought her clothes and told stories about them. It was intense, but cool, pretty cool," Ginther said. "This has the sunflower, because Mark always gave me flowers for birthdays or anniversaries, and wrapped around the sunflowers is the only necktie he owned." For more, see Gillies' blog, at "Seams Undone."

County settles Tyler Road dispute with eminent domain, compensation

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Following an amicable, outdoor public hearing Tuesday afternoon, the Oxford County County Commissioners voted unanimously to take by their power of eminent domain a mile-and-a-half stretch of gravel road and right of way at the western end of Tyler Road, in Mason Township.

The public hearing was held near the end of the paved portion of the road, an extension of Bethel's Grover Hill Road, which begins in the village, near the foot of Mill Hill Road.

The commissioners' action removes a possible cloud over public use of the road, which provides access to the Caribou Speckled Wilderness Area, Haystack Mountain, Miles Notch Trails, and the West Branch of the Pleasant River.

Ownership of the far end of Tyler Road has been in dispute since 2009, when two abutters, Cameron Wade and Celina Adams, filed a lawsuit to determine who owned a 2,086-foot stretch of the road that crossed their property.

Wade and Adams claimed that the road had essentially been "abandoned" by the county, which had performed no maintenance on it since 1960.

The county countered that

Upton taxpayer questions reval's balance

By ALISON ALOISIO

Last April, when tiny Upton narrowly approved doing a town revaluation for the first time in 30 years, much of the opposition came from lake front property owners concerned that their valuations might jump.

But it is a property owner away from the Lake Umbagog shoreline who is unhappy enough with the results to pursue an appeal with Oxford County. He also claims the values assigned to waterfront property by assessor T.A. As sociates of West Paris are unrealistically low.

Dean Merchant of Stratham N.H., owns the former Grange Hall, located on less than a half acre of land on Route 26.

Merchant said his new valuation of $61,000 nearly doubles the 2009 value of $32,637. He said he has made some repairs and improvements in the 22 years he has owned the building, which is on the National Register of Historic Places. He uses the old building as a second home, he said.

A former realtor, Merchant said that following the revaluation, he brought in a local Maine realtor to give him a

TURKEY TUESDAY TIME

To the Editor:

This coming Tuesday, Nov. 22, is Turkey Tuesday. For more than 20 years this community event has brought many of us together for a great feed that also benefits our communities.

More than 20 years ago, Dave and Heather Nivus and The Good Food Store began this pre-Thanksgiving community meal to benefit the local Food Bank. They donated and cooked turkeys, stuffing, gravy, and mashed potatoes. There was no charge for the meal; however, everyone who attended was asked to bring a dish to share and make a donation of either money or non-perishable food items. People also brought their own plates and utensils to keep clean-up to a minimum.

Little has changed over the years except the number of people sharing the meal has grown from 50 or so to several hundred. Many others have joined the Nivus family in sponsoring this event the American Legion donates the space, area businesses provide either helping hands or make donations, and a number of people help with the preparation and clean-up.

All donations go to support our local Food Bank. The Food Bank helps local people who cannot feed their families because they have temporarily fallen on hard times. All Food Bank assistance is by referral such as through town offices and fraternal/religious organizations.

Tuesday, Nov 22, 6 p.m. at the Locke's Mills Legion Hall on the Gore Road. Bring a dish to share, your plate and utensils, and a donation. Please come to this annual community event great food, great people, see friends and make new ones, plus help others in our communities through your donations.

VETERANS' MONUMENT UPDATE

To the Editor:

Although it is not visible to the casual observer, progress is being made. The site selection subcommittee hopes to have an answer from the owner of the plot which is the first choice for locating the monument/honor roll before the end of November.

Failing in that site, we are prepared to go to the Bethel board of selectmen with a second choice, which we are confident will be looked upon favorably.

I visited this site with Jim Sysco, who is interested in working on a design. He agrees that this is a viable location, from a design standpoint.

Jane Ryerson and Mona Grover have spent many hours going over the names and other essential information which the Ryersons obtained from the Maine archives in Augusta. They then traveled to most of the area cemeteries and worked more hours to resolve differences found between headstones, the archives information and the cemetery lists the Legion uses to put out the flags for Memorial Day.

In the process they have found and corrected quite a few errors in the Mundt-Allen post cemetery flag lists and have also found a number of veterans' graves which were not on one or the other lists.

Upon completion of this project we expect the Memorial Day cemetery flag lists will be much more comprehensive than before.

The names subcommittee plans to begin publishing lists of veteran names sorted by war/conflict in The Citizen to give area folks a chance to review the lists and check them against family records.

Hopefully, this will result in the most comprehensive list possible before construction on the Roll Call/Memorial begins.

Fundraising has begun. Thanks to a recent donation by Ramona Grover, we now have $200 in our memorial fund, double the previous amount.

Currently, we plan to convene another meeting of the entire monument committee early in December, by which time we hope to have more information on the site selection process.

CHRISTMAS FOR CHILDREN GEARING UP

To the Editor:

The Bethel Rotary Club is pleased to announce that it will once again be sponsoring its annual Christmas For Children program.

Since 1987, this important community project has helped to provide important assistance during the holiday season for many needy children and families who live in the SAD44 area.

Anyone interested in donating to this effort is urged to send his or her contribution to: Bethel Rotary Club Christmas For Children, PO Box 471, Bethel, ME 04217

Requests for assistance may also be mailed to the same address or dropped off at any school office in SAD44.

Please note that assistance is provided only to families who reside in the SAD44 area and requests can only be accepted from the parents or legal guardians of the children.

The Rotary Club is pleased to be able to assist families with children up to and including high school age. All requests must include the name and age of each child. A telephone number and mailing address should also be included.

This year, we are also asking that requests for assistance contain an e-mail address, if one is available.

Once again this year, Rotarians will be collecting donations at the Bethel Shop n' Save on several Saturdays between now and the holidays.

On behalf of the entire Bethel Rotary Club, I would like to thank the community for the ongoing generosity and support it has shown for this program over the many years of its existence.

Best wishes for a happy and healthy holiday season!

MAKING THAT CHANGE HAPPEN FOR THEM

To the Editor:

Several young people from our area showed real leadership last week in our nation's capital as they rallied against a destructive oil pipeline proposal.

We should be proud of Abram Bartlett, Abbie Goldberg, Molly Siegel, Samantha Southam, Marguerite Wiser, Rosemary Wiser, and my daughter, Alice Hotopp. They made a grueling bus ride to Washington, DC., and back in 36 hours, to be part of a peaceful demonstration by 12,000 people at the White House.

Their efforts have led to a decision by the Obama administration to send back the massive Keystone XL pipeline plan for more review.

Winning this fight to stop Canadian tar sands oil from being piped through the US to be shipped overseas is crucial to slowing the onset of climate change.

These students and the other young protesters who made up most of our ranks in DC understand that their future lies not with dirty oil, coal, and gas, but with clean energy.

We should be doing everything we can to make that change happen for them.

KEEPING OUR LOW-INCOME NEIGHBORS WARM

To the Editor:

Winter in Maine can be a challenge for anyone.

Our roads get icy, the snow seems never-ending and our temperatures plummet to sub-zero readings, particularly in the North.

It is disturbing that as we head into the colder months, many Mainers will face additional challenges staying warm.

AARP's Public Policy Institute recently issued a report on winter heating costs and the news is not good.

According to the report, since the mid-1990s, home heating costs have outpaced the ability of many low-income consumers to adequately heat their homes. Of particular concern is that current projections indicate that heat expenses will increase the most this year for households using fuel oil.

Here in Maine, approximately three out of four residents use fuel oil to heat their homes.

New England in general has the highest heating costs in the nation, because heating oil is the primary heating fuel used.

For New England residents age 65 and older, the average winter cost in 2010-11 was $3,058. Projections indicate that for 2011-12, this will jump almost 10 percent.

The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) provides funding across America, helping low-income households pay their utility bills.

Sadly, the House Appropriations Committee has already proposed a huge cut to LIHEAP funding that will no doubt affect many Mainers in the coming months.

In light of this proposal, it is AARP's sincere hope that Governor LePage will consider directing part of the state budget toward helping low-income Mainers as they struggle to stay warm.

The First Years: Matilda Comes, Living off the Land

We enjoyed fresh salads daily. By late August the weeds seemed to be weary of struggling.

There were a few carefree days. All too soon it was September, time to can and harvest and preserve, time to beware of early frosts. We had few spare vegetables but nature had helped me. The fruit trees bore prolifically.

I soon filled the glass canning jars that I had found in the cellar. By now the barter system was becoming easier. I went about among the neighbors, all of whom had deep-freezers, trading plums for jars. I became drunk with canning; did up thirty-four quarts of red Japanese plums, twenty-eight quarts of blue Stanley plums and fifteen of French prune plums.

We had one tiny fragile peach tree which had blown over in the hurricane last fall. B.B. had lovingly propped it up; it survived and bore a tremendous crop. We ate many, gave some away and still had a few left to can.

For fun I had planted West India gherkins. They were harder than weeds and ran out over the edge of the garden into the field. Every day I found more and more of them in the grass. We did not much like them, but they were not to be wasted. I put up a gallon jar after gallon jar of them, gave them away, begged people to accept them.

We had planted a few Green Mountain potatoes; the only kind that B.B. thought was fit to eat. It was a choice variety for flavor and mealiness but very susceptible to illis, so not often available at the market. I had planted the rows next to the asparagus bed. The crop was meager and of poor quality. Thus I learned about the pH content of soils. Asparagus requires a very high pH content. The Sears evidently knew this and had limed well the bed. Potatoes require a very low pH; I couldn't have planted them in a worse spot. I bought a soil testing kit to use for another year.

When I wasn't picking or canning, I was worrying about the possibilities of frost. It could arrive the first week in September, ruin the crops and flowers, and then be followed by days of balmy weather. It could postpone arrival until the end of the month and until all the crops had ripened and been stored inside. How to predict it was an unanswerable question.

Everyone had a different idea, none were foolproof. As the years went by, I found only one never-failing sign. It could be the mildest of days, no weather change forecast, but if the crows held a noisy caucus that day, inevitably next morning the sun came up to shine upon a killing white blanket over the land.

This first year my only real concern was over the tomato plants, which were still loaded with unripe fruit. T.R. told me to pick off at least half of the leaves that were left on the plants. This would hasten the ripening process. I did it with trepidation but it worked. The way to thoroughly savor and enjoy a tomato is to walk through the garden, choose the most luscious red one, pick it from the vine, wipe off any dirt on your shirt, and then eat it like an apple. It is a gastronomical treat impossible to duplicate. I wanted to continue to enjoy this and also have sun-ripened fruit to can. Thus began the battle of the coverings. Remembering how easy it was to slip a bushel basket over the tender plants in June to protect them from too hot sun does not prepare you for fall. One would not expect it would take much material to cover only eight plants. Wait until you try it. I gathered from the shed old coats with the odds and ends of old blankets hanging on the pole in the barn. But this was a mere drop in the ocean of long vines, and always the biggest tomatoes are near the ends. B.B. let me have some of his horse blankets to use. I soon learned why he had seemed to be a bit grudging about sharing.

Of an evening the conversation would start, "Do you think there is going to be a frost tonight?" B.B. always answered that he had no idea, that he knew nothing about weather patterns. "The wind has gone down, it seems a bit chilly," I would go on. A look at the thermometer showed the mercury not low. I would waver then, fearful that an unexpected cold could come, decide at ten p.m. to go out and cover the plants. B.B. grumblingly went along to hold the lantern. Came morning, a quick look from the window showed no frost on the ground. Rather, all was swathed in heavy fog. I went out in this to find all the coverings drenched and wet, then to drag them to the clothesline to dry out.

We continued to eat sun-ripened fruit. I canned. B.B. insisted that the pleasure was not worth all the work, worry, and indecision that I went through. But I persisted for a few weeks. Then one night, when I either forgot or it seemed unusually warm, no covers were put on. Next morning I looked out onto a silvery world; black, dead plants I was sad at breakfast, but tried to console myself by thinking that the indecision was over, that all the covers were dry. Next year I would be better prepared, would use no horse blankets, no heavy wools to be dragged wet to the line. Instead I would solicit my friends for their worn-out shower curtains and plastic tablecloths. These would be light to handle, could be spread on the grass to dry quickly.

suggestion for an asking price, if he were to sell it. The price, he said, came in the range of the 2009 valuation.

Merchant appealed to selectmen, but said he received a letter from chairman Bob Brown declining to reconsider. If a formal abatement application is not approved, Merchant said he will appeal to the Oxford County Board of Assessment Review.

In addition to questioning T.A. Associates owner Wade Rainey on the Grange assessment, Merchant said he is also skeptical of the values Rainey assigned to waterfront acreage.

Rainey set a standard of $55,000 an acre, compared to a range of $20,000 to $24,000 on non-waterfront property.

Merchant said that $55,000 is too low. "It's an egregious amount to me," he said, noting that his research of town records showed one home that sold for more than $500,000 had been valued by the town at $273,000, while another that sold for $285,000 was valued at $145,000.

Back from the lake, he said a home on Route 26 is currently offered for sale at $155,750, but the town valued at $278,802.

The revaluation, said Merchant, "didn't end up in any way, in any manner, the way any of us would have expected." The values, he said, should be closer to fair market value.

At Upton's April meeting, Mike Rogers of Maine Revenue Services used the term "just" to describe where values should be set.

He said then he had reviewed sales in Upton in recent years, using six waterfront properties and six residential properties. The waterfront property assessments had averaged 42 percent of their sale price, while residential averaged 64 percent, he said.

In a revaluation, he said, "the waterfront would be picking up a larger share of the tax burden, justifiably, because they sell for a greater amount, and they're assessed lower, on an average, than your residential properties."

Extremes discounted
Rainey acknowledges there had been lakeside property that sold for a half million.

But, he said, "we didn't even consider those because they were way out of place."

On the other hand, he said, some properties "were practically given away," and those prices were also not considered.

Merchant and Rainey agree that there are not a lot of recent waterfront property sales to use for comparison in setting values of other properties, particularly since the U.S. government has over the years bought properties to add to the Umbagog Wildlife Refuge.

Rainey said he has also not factored in those sales because, he said, they tend to be unrealistically high.

He went across the state line to Lincoln Plantation, N.H., for waterfront comparisons, and found them valued low, "30,000 an acre," because there has been no recent overall valuation. An attempt to compare with Errol was unsuccessful, because the town assessor couldn't be reached, he said.

Asked how many total waterfront properties he found to use for comparison, Rainey said he could not recall.

As for Upton properties away from the lake, "we had good sales on those for a couple of years," he said, which provided more information on which to base values.

As with the lakefront property, he said, some recent sales "were ridiculously high, two or three times what we had. You just can't use those," while others were very low, as in the case of a sale within a family, so those were also discounted.

Regarding Merchant's property, Rainey said it would be Merchant's prerogative to appeal to the county.

Since the Upton valuation was completed, said Rainey, he has received about 30 calls from property owners with questions, split about evenly between waterfront and non-waterfront owners.

Some changes were made with new information provided, but in many cases, people just wanted clarification, he said.

Town Clerk Michele Bouchard said she had received a few calls, but they were not from waterfront property owners.

Rainey said he is happy with the overall revaluation process.

"I think it went well," he said. "We were not out to drive prices high. We were out to get land values equalized."

Tin Mountain Roundup is part of the resort's corporate initiative to give back to the community through in-kind giving, food drives, and events that raise money for such programs as the Bethel Rotary Club's Toy for Tots, Maine Handicapped Skiing, and the Make-A-Wish Foundation as well as Sunday River's Regional Charitable Fund. The Andover Food Bank was established to provide emergency food to those who find themselves in short-term crisis situations and without the means to buy food. As an interim measure, while these families and individuals await services, Andover Food Bank boxes and provides ten balanced meals—enough for three days, which is the period assessed as the minimum time it takes for the appropriate agencies to be in a position to assist. For more information about the Tin Mountain Round Up or any of Sunday River's charitable events, visit www.sundayriver.com.

Heating oil prices still rising

AUGUSTA—The price of heating oil in Maine continues to rise as winter approaches. The Governor's Office of Energy Independence and Security announced Monday that the average statewide cash price for No. 2 heating oil rose seven cents in the past week to $3.66 per gallon. Director Ken Fletcher says low inventories in the Northeast as well as instability in European Union economies are helping prop up heating fuel prices to nearly 80 cents higher than at the same time a year ago. He says the recent mild weather has alleviated demand, but household heating expenditures for heating oil and propane are still projected to increase by 10 percent and 9 percent, respectively this winter.

FORMER ANDOVER CLERK REPLIES ON AWD ISSUE

MORTON SAYS SHE CALLED AWD REGARDING LAND SALE—In last week's article on the Public Utilities Commission's investigation of the sale of the Andover Water District's former reservoir land, a filing by the AWD lawyer was correctly quoted as stating that the town said it became aware of the possible sale in fall 2009, through a phone call from the AWD. Former Town Clerk Elaine Morton contacted the Citizen this week to dispute that claim, saying that she had received a call from the buyer's attorney. "Then I made a call to a water district member asking if this was true, and he told me yes," she said.

road work performed there by the U.S. Forest Service, in part to accommodate timber harvesting in the WMNF, qualified as county maintenance, since the USFS was essentially acting as an agent of the county.

The dispute was settled earlier this year, with the county agreeing to pay Wade and Adams $5,000 for their research and legal expenses and $5,000 for land that will be taken as part of the Tyler Road right of way.

The county will also pay a total of $14,154 to eight other road abutters, for property taken for the right of way.

Two-dozen residents or interested parties turned out for Tuesday's hearing, which lasted less than half an hour.

No one expressed opposition to the county's plan, but there were several questions about the impact of planned improvements to the road, which will include a 14-foot gravel travel way and a 50-foot right of way extending for 25 feet on either side of the road's centerline.

The questions included the timing of the proposed work (which will be performed by the USFS), access while the work is underway, tree cutting and related matters.

County commissioners David Duguay, Steven Merrill and Chairman Caldwell Jackson all attended the hearing, but County Administrator Scott Cole fielded most of the questions.

Regarding the timing, Cole said: "The thinking was that depending on what the Forest Service has in mind for final work, there might be some mitigative work done in springtime, or even in fall, if everyone was in agreement."

USFS Timber Sales Administrator Reginald Gilbert, who will oversee the project, said the bulk of the work would probably take place next summer, over a period of about a month.

Asked about access, Cole told the residents: "I don't think you'll lose access. I think you'll be inconvenienced by normal road improvements and construction equipment."

"We have no intention to shut down the road for weeks on end, but you might have a shutdown for a culvert replacement, where you need the whole road to work on the culvert, and that may be a day here, a day there. That will all be posted if it's known ahead of time."

When no WMNF logging operations are underway, the road will not be maintained during the winter, but resident Greg Frangoulis asked about access when it was plowed to allow for passage of logging equipment.

"Where are they going to put the snow? Is there going to be a giant berm in front of our house, which would make it really difficult to get in and out?" he asked.

"That could be a hardship for the landowner, even on snowshoes or skis."

Cole replied: "Once the road is being maintained for winter use, obviously you'll have snowbanks."

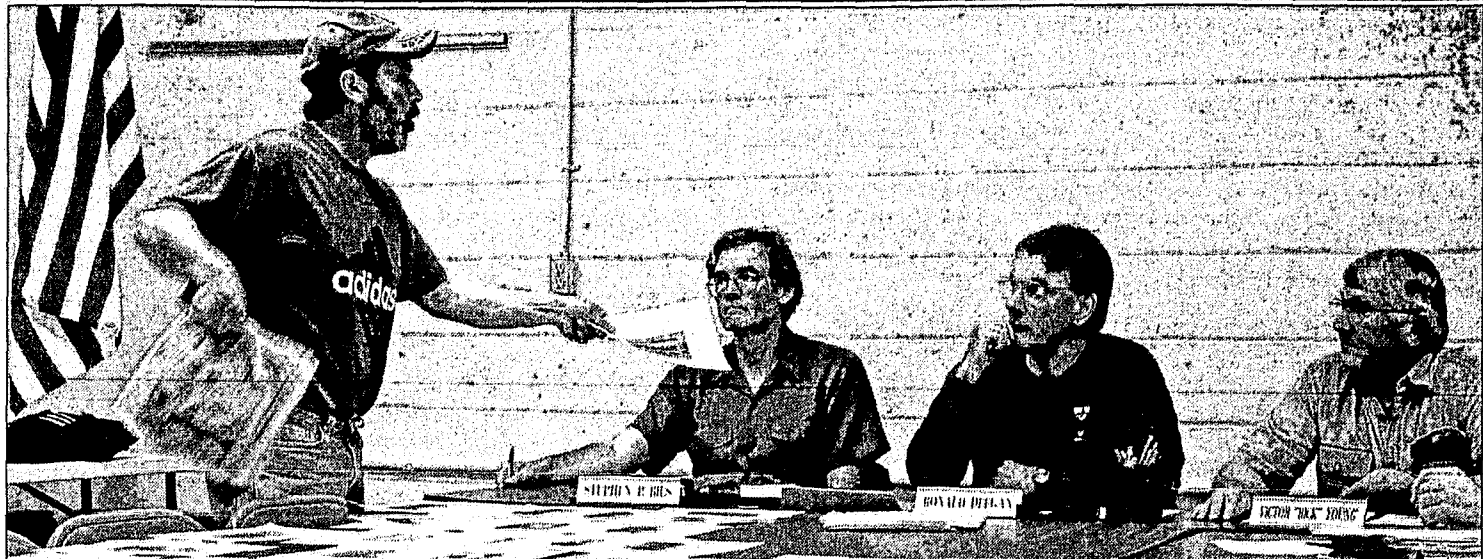

But plow wings could be adjusted, he said, "so that they're not going to bury the driveway, but you will have a hump."

"A little hump is O.K.," Frangoulis replied. "We just don't want a giant wall."

As for tree cutting, Cole said: "It's really a minimal impact operation. The county has agreed as part of the litigation that—as you know—led up to this, to absolute minimum cutting."

Woodstock

of the deck, and more recently took down two walls and the rest of the collapsed part of the barn, intending to rebuild it.

"Every time there's been communication, I've done what I need to. There's been some miscommunication," he said.

Cox added that he acquired the property two years ago from a relative, and it was in disrepair then.

"Selective enforcement"

Cox then questioned selectmen about other properties in town that he said posed a danger, and presented about three dozen photos. He asked why the town was not pursuing those property owners.

"We can't do everyone all at once," replied Town Manager Vern Maxfield.

Added Selectman Rick Young, "You've made a complaint, and we will act on those as well."

Maxfield said the current focus needed to be on Cox's property, in response to complaints received about it.

"If you had acknowledged the letter, we could have been done with this at our Nov. 1 [regular selectmen's] meeting," said Maxfield.

Reiterating that the town was pursuing "selective enforcement" against him, Cox also said that eight years ago he had complained to the town that slabs under the Union Church were in poor shape and needed work, but his complaint had gone unheeded.

After a 45-minute discussion, Cox and Whitman agreed to meet at the property next week to discuss next steps, including his long-term plans for it. She will then report back to selectmen.

"Bullying"

Several people at the meeting took issue with a photo of Cox's house that ran in last week's Citizen, and with an article in another newspaper.

Deirdre True said she was "astounded at what I've been seeing in the newspapers. I hear about things on the computer, like cyberbullying, and at schools and how it's not allowed. People actually go crazy, commit suicide and everything over this, and then I see these 'professional' newspaper people, code enforcement, whatever your positions are, putting this stuff in the news. I was blown away."

"I do see this as selective, and I do see it as bullying, and I see it public. At least on Facebook it's a little bit discreet—only people who are on your Facebook see it. This is wide open bullying. We don't allow this in society. That is scrutinized in school. Kids get kicked out for bullying, yet society is promoting bullying and teaching our kids, who are reading the paper, to bully."

"I think this was so tactless. I am appalled at what I see in the newspaper. I am embarrassed and humiliated that the town I live in would treat an individual this way. I am appalled that adults ... I expect children to be stupid and to bully. I do not expect adults to be stupid and bully, especially not professional adults."

Young noted that other than the legal notices, the selectmen do not control what goes into the newspaper. "The paper takes notes [at meetings]," he said.

True continued her criticism of the newspaper coverage, directing her comments to the reporters present.

"I know there is freedom of speech and freedom of the press. Whoever did this should be ashamed of themselves. The article, the picture, blowing it all out of proportion. I hope you don't have children, because they're going to grow up to be bullies just like you."

She went on to say, "You have to sleep with yourself at night. People like you, and probably your children, are why I choose to homeschool ... so they're not exposed to people like you. Now my children have been exposed to people like you because of the newspapers that we read."

Commented Carol Cox, "Someone went out of their way to go take that picture, so they could put that nasty picture in the nasty paper."

True added that if it had been her house, "I don't think I would be harassed like that. If I were harassed, this would be on the 6 o'clock news. I would have a lawyer, and this would probably be on the national news. Bullying is not OK."

Young said the town was not harassing or bullying Cox. "We're following the ordinance of this town," he said.

Second property

Whitman also provided information on another unoccupied house that she said had been owned by Susan C. Wood, but which the bank has foreclosed on. Located on Route 26 in Bryant Pond Village, the house is in danger of collapsing from snow, Whitman said, and people entering could fall through the floor. Selectmen directed Whitman to file a letter about the condition of the house at the county Registry of Deeds, in order that any potential buyers be aware of it, and to try to contact the bank to ask if the problems can be addressed.

(Note: Information on other topics discussed at the selectmen's meeting will appear in next week's Citizen.)

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

The other night I woke up to an intense pain in my right foot. In the fog of semi consciousness my brain registered that my big toe hurt like the dickens, but not enough to bring me to full wakefulness.

In the morning when I was fully awake I thought about what a strange dream I had about hurting my big toe. Then I got out of bed and when I stood up I discovered my nocturnal toe pain was no dream at all. I could barely walk.

Later that day my daughter stopped by for a visit and when she saw that I was hobbling around and being the concerned daughter that she is she asked what had happened to my foot.

I explained that I must have gotten the sheet tangled around my toe during the night and possibly dislocated it or some such darn thing.

"Sleeping can be hazardous to your health," Renee exclaimed. She then went on to tell me that the week before she had awoken with such a pain in her back that she even accused her husband of getting up during the night and kicking her while she slept. Of course, her husband did no such thing, but it was a mystery as to why she suffered such a pain.

"I guess I just slept wrong," Renee said.

This led to a discussion of how often one gets up in the morning with unaccounted for pain, stiff necks or bruises and what a strange statement "sleeping wrong" is.

There are a lot of things that I can't do right. I can't sew worth a darn and I can't darn worth a darn either for that matter. I've never

One thing
I always thought I could do right

been able to draw; even my stick people don't look like anything but a bunch of funny lines. I certainly can't sing, which anyone who sits near me in church can confirm.

But one thing I always thought I could do right is sleep. After all, I've had years of practice and I really enjoy doing it.

The more Renee and I talked about the injuries and ailments that are inflicted upon us during the night I realized that I apparently "sleep wrong" a great deal of the time.

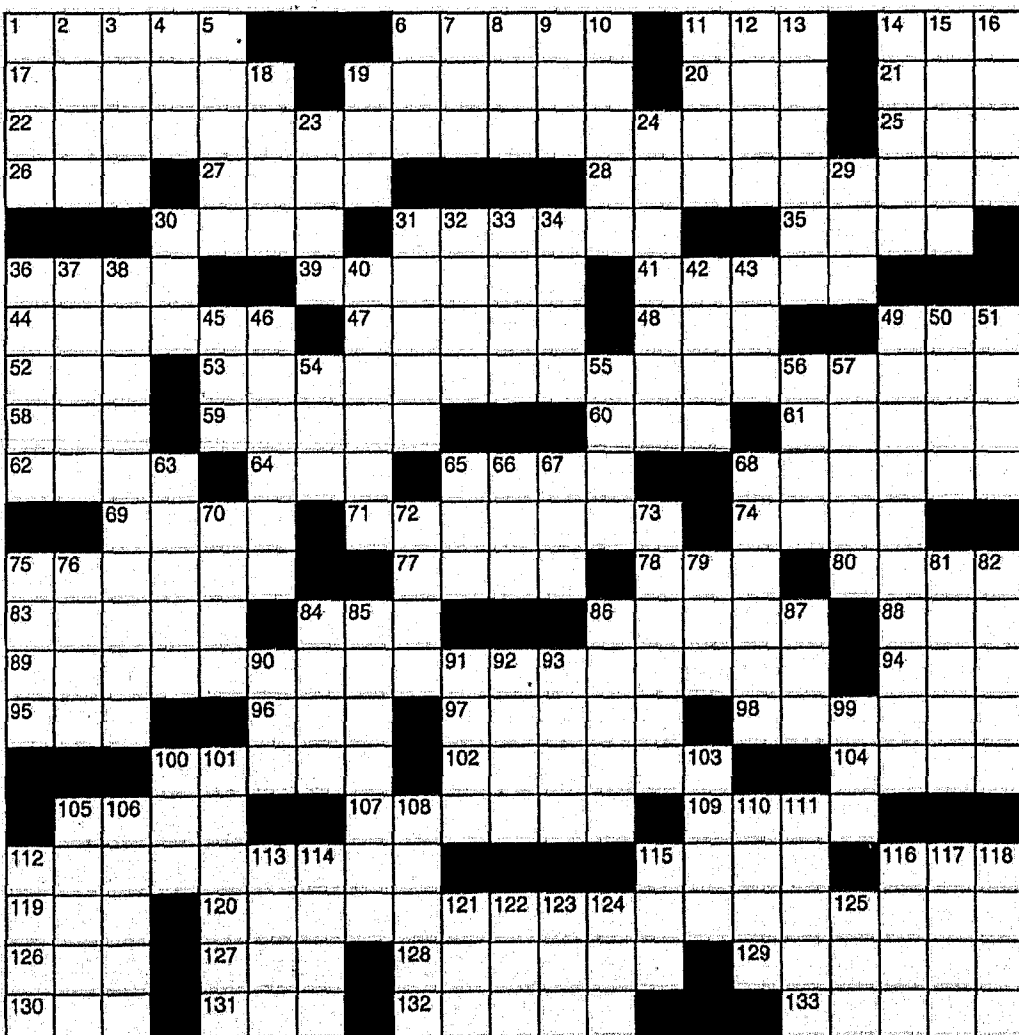

I know that with age there are a lot more aches and pains than there used to be and they do seem to manifest themselves the most first thing in the morning. When I get up in the morning, even when I have "slept right," it takes a while before my joints limber up enough so that I don't look like a bear coming out of hibernation.

However, the number of mornings that I get up with a neck so stiff that I can't turn my head to the side or a back in such pain that I can't touch my knees let alone my toes are too numerous to mention. I assume that these mornings follow the nights when I "slept wrong."

That's just not right! Sleep should be restful and painless. It's bad enough that you go through blanket wars with your bedmate, but to injure yourself in your sleep is ridiculous!

Fortunately, whatever I did to my big toe has healed itself and I haven't gotten up recently with any mystery injuries. I'm going to make a real effort to "sleep right" from now on, and the way I see it that will make getting up in the morning mystery free.

"Turkey Tuesday" is Nov. 22 at 6 p.m. at the Locke's Mills Legion Hall. This annual community meal is open to everyone and has been ongoing for more than twenty years. Turkey, gravy, stuffing, and mashed potatoes are donated through the Good Food Store in Bethel. Everyone who attends is asked to bring a dish to share and make a donation for the local Food Bank, either money or a non-perishable food item. The donations go to the Food Bank, which serves people in all our area communities.

The children at Crescent Park School need your help collecting Box Tops for Education and Campbells Soup labels. With the upcoming holidays this is a perfect time of year to collect labels. Box Tops for Education and Campbells soup labels appear on hundreds of products, including cereals and snacks, soups, cookie and cake mixes, pastry doughs, and paper products. The labels help schools purchase additional educational and sports equipment not covered in the tight school budgets. Since 2002, CPS has earned $9,246 from Box Tops for Education alone. Track the school's progress at www.bxxtops4education.com. Drop off labels at the Bethel Foodliner, CPS, or mail them to Labels for Education, Crescent Park School, 19 Crescent Lane, Bethel, ME 04217.

I'm used to seeing great articles about our local community in magazines such as "Down East" and "Yankee." I don't see many in food magazines, so I was excited to see that the November/December issue of "Eating Well" has an eight-page article about the Goransons, potato farmers in Dresden, Maine. The article "Potato Harvest," by writer Carolyn Malcoun describes the success of the Goranson Farm despite the decline of the potato industry in Maine. Did you know, for example, that until 1958 more potatoes were grown in Aroostook County than in any single state in the country? Despite the fact that some nutritionists say the potato is "unhealthy," potatoes are loaded with potassium, vitamins C and B6, and fiber. Adirondack Blues are filled with anthocyanins, which give the potatoes their bright color and may help lower blood pressure. The Goransons grow a dozen kinds of potatoes, which they sell to Whole Foods Market in Portland and other local businesses. Malcoun's article includes four pages of recipes, including potato-leek bisque, roasted garlic mashed purple potatoes, and potato-pear latkes. "Eating Well" is available at bookstores and local libraries.

Important Reminder: The Town Office will be closed Thanksgiving week due to budget constraints.

The office will re-open for business on Monday, Nov. 28. The Selectmen are interested in finding a person who will exchange mowing for the hay on certain fields in Andover for the 2012 mowing season. If there is more than one party interested, there will be a lottery to be drawn at 1 p.m. on Nov. 29. Send a letter of intent to the Town Office. There will not be a Planning Board meeting on Nov. 21. The Planning Board is looking for an interested alternate to fill a vacancy on the board.

The Variety Show at the First Congregational Church on Saturday evening honored our Veterans with performances by local talented people and concluded with a medley of music from wars over the years from 1774 to the present and the theme songs of the major services. Proceeds of the evening went to the church, which houses the Food Pantry and provides meeting space for a number of local organizations.

Already another week has slipped by and next week we will be celebrating Thanksgiving. I would love to hear from my readers what their favorite part of this holiday is, be it food, a traditional thing or what you are thankful for this season. Call me at 824-3220 or e-mail han@megalink.net.

Hunting season is well on its way, yet as of this writing I am not aware of anyone in the neighborhood having bagged a deer.

In response to my writing last week concerning Veterans Day, I received some interesting information

Fire Station during its annual craft sale. This has become a community event with tables also available for crafters at the First Congregational Church. There are still some tables available. Contact Marsha Burns at 392-1894. Leave your phone number and a message. Tables are $15. The fair at the church will also have a greens table, a food table and a luncheon will be served with hot dogs, beans, coleslaw and American Chop Suey; take out will be available. The Andover Historical Society will be present with their many Andover commemorative items for sale.

Wow, this great weather is a wonderful thing for those of us who want to do our outside Christmas decorating without freezing our hands off. Outside of our October snowstorm, we've been blessed with a mild fall and hope that's an omen for the winter.

Gilead

By LIN CHAPMAN

The winter birds are beginning to come back. We have had some of the usual ones like Chickadees, Nuthatches and Goldfinches. Mary Tyler and I were talking on the phone about a Gilead Historical Society project when she noticed a male Cardinal last Sunday.

My brother, Steve McLain, stopped by the house last Saturday and picked up the bag of bird seed we had picked up for him on our recent trip to Gorham, N.H. He has seen a few birds at his house and is now ready to keep them fed this winter. Lise McLain and Andre Dupont visited their father, Gerard Dupont, at Ledgewood last Sunday and celebrated his birthday.

VET VISITS CPS-Last week Marine veteran Buck Buxton visited second-graders at the Crescent Park Elementary School. Buxton, a sergeant who served in Vietnam from 1966 to 1968, is the grandfather of second-grader Jordan Berry. He talked about such topics as the branches of military service, jobs in the military, and flag etiquette. He is shown here with his daughter, Sarah (to his right, with Jordan on her lap), and members of Brenda Wight's class. (Submitted photo)

Steve and Lise McLain went to Wal-Mart last Sunday. On their way home they dined at Pizza Hut in Gorham. Linda Taylor attended a scrapbook weekend in Shelburne this past weekend and took Morgan for her first experience of the "scrapbooking weekend." She had a great time, and got 32 pages done, to Linda's 31, which was quite remarkable for a beginner! Morgan wants to go on the next one. Linda couldn't believe how fast she picked it up. She took right off and went right to town with the pictures that Linda had printed for her of a trip to Pennsylvania and Indiana in 2005. She started on her Head Start pictures. She is very proud of her work as is her grandmother, Linda.

The following is a benefit for the local Food Bank: Remember that Turkey Tuesday is coming right up Tuesday, Nov. 22, 6 p.m. at the Locke's Mills Legion Hall. This annual community meal is open to everyone and has been ongoing for over 20 years. Turkey, gravy, stuffing, and mashed potatoes are donated through The Good Food Store in Bethel. Everyone who attends is asked to bring a dish to share and make a donation (either money or non-perishable food item). All donations go to support the local Food Bank. Come join in this great meal that helps our communities.

Town Office

There was a good turnout for Election Day. There were 74 voters out of 156 registered voters, who came to vote. Thanks to all the ballot clerks (Luella Cole, Sharon Leighton, Steve McLain, Linda Taylor and Warden Alicia McLean) who worked the day and helped count the ballots.

Dog licenses for 2012 are now available from the Town Clerk on Tuesday evenings from 5 to 7 p.m. Anyone who had a dog in 2011 and did not license it will still need to contact the Town Clerk. Dog licenses are due in the month of January. Late fees apply after Jan. 31. Proof of a current rabies shot must be shown at the time of the purchase of the license.

Upton

By JOE BERNIER

We are certainly having a nice run of weather for the middle of November.

I am willing to bet that we will pay for it later. Upton Ladies Aid Supper went well. The meal was great and the desserts were even better. The next Ladies Aid event will be the Christmas Party. It will be Dec. 3, 6 p.m. at the school. The Ladies Aid have changed their weekly meeting time to Fridays at 10 a.m. until further notice.

The Upton House owners enjoyed visits with Kevin and Jane Pepler, Bob's son and daughter-in-law, and with friends Debby and Harry. Somehow Debby and Harry were drafted into helping to prepare for the Hunters Aid Supper. It seems everyone involved had fun.

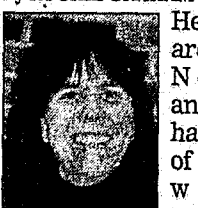

Neither the Historical Society nor the Planning Board plan to meet this month.

The next snowmobile club meeting will be Saturday, Nov. 19, 9 a.m. at the Upton House. Membership applications are available at the Upton House or by contacting Gary Bilodeau.

The cash flow problem that the town was experiencing is easing as property tax money is coming in. The town is paying bills, buying sand and getting the town plowing equipment ready for winter. The selectmen will meet Dec. 4 for a budget workshop meeting. They will have their regular monthly meeting Dec. 11. The December town meeting is set for Dec. 29, 7 p.m. in the school building. Call me with your news at 533-2010 or e-mail backstjoe@gmail.com.

November to date, I know it is coming, but I am not ready for more snow. I'd as much like to wait till after Thanksgiving which is fast upon us. Next week, Thursday, the 24th it will be here. We plan on doing a family thing in Norway (I think). We also plan on attending Turkey Tuesday in Locke Mills. We shall see.

Last week I started back at Tai Chi and plan to go again this week. A new session starts in Bridgton. Last week I found it quite challenging. Hopefully I'll do better this week. It is an indoor program for now.

Son-in-law Jeff had to come over before he ate his pancakes and rework my printer. Because they changed the router, it didn't work. I was totally unprepared to figure that out on my own. So he came all the way over just to help me. Thanks Jeff.

Thursday, the 17th, at the Waterford Library ACA (Adult Children of Alcoholics and Dysfunctional Families) will meet at 10 a.m. We welcome new people. Next Thursday, the 24th there will be no meeting in honor of Thanksgiving. FMI call 739-9115. In case of snow, please call first to make sure the meeting is not canceled.

Thursday, the 17th, there will be a potluck community supper at the Wilkins House in Waterford.

Rotary will hold a breakfast on Nov. 27 at Ordway Hall in Gould Academy. The breakfast is from 7:30 to 11 a.m. and is $8 for adults and $3 for 12 and under. Tickets in advance are $7 and can be purchased from club members, at Riverview Resort or Mt. Mann Jewelers. Proceeds go to the club's community projects and scholarships.

This is short but the hour gets late and I must finish this so I can get a good night's sleep before Tai Chi. Have a great week and enjoy your turkey next week.

granddaughter, step or otherwise, as Mat and Mandy Conkright, along with Richard, 12, and Blythe, who will be 5 this month, welcomed Malia Annaliese into their family early Saturday morning, Oct. 22, at Stephens Memorial Hospital. She weighed in at ten pounds. Maternal grandparents are Ralph and Lorene Mills of Greenwood and Virgil "Tink" Conkright of Bethel and the late Pam Conkright. Maternal great-grandmother is Laura Hutchins of East Andover. Debbie and Owen Brown took me to Portland, Saturday, Nov. 5, and introduced me to "The Crackerbarrel," and after the errands and shopping they did there we continued on to Lewiston where they picked up my daughter, Marcia Smith, at the bus stop. She is visiting me for a couple weeks before snow flies.

I am sure this unusual fall will turn into winter at some point. I have lived a good many years now and I don't think I have ever seen the leaves hang on to the branches as long as they have this fall. Even a lot of the oak and maple leaves in my yard are still hanging on for dear life to the branches of the trees. There are still a goodly number of ducks swimming around on the pond, too. I saw a bumblebee the other day along with several other small ducks.

I am sure there is a lot more news out there but I don't get around as much as I used to so I am usually the last to know. I have been having a time with my blood pressure amongst other things, too, so I am not quite up to par these days. I hope there is someone out there with a desire to get the news out and/or do a bit of creative writing so I can retire. I don't want to be like the "old soldiers" and just fade away! I'd like to know the column is in someone's hands other than mine before that happens.

is Nov. 19, a Saturday, at 10 a.m. followed by dinner. The December meeting is the first Saturday, also, with a dinner, then the Grange closes for the winter to open again in March. A Veterans Day program was held: opening thought, song, "You're a Grand Old Flag," Richard Felt read about the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier; Laura and Richard played music, "A Melody of Songs." Laura told about the song, "Coming In on a Wing and a Prayer." A reading about the common cold and remedies. Song, "There's a Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere." Bertha is home from the nursing home, but has a bad cold.

Services at the Baptist Church are Sunday school at 9:15, morning worship at 10:30, evening service at 6. Wednesday evening at 6:30 is prayer meeting. We now have a new pastor, Pastor Matt Jones. Come to church and welcome him and his family.

West Paris Universalist Church will hold their annual Chicken Pie Supper tonight (Nov. 17). They will also have their fall sale starting at 4:30 p.m. They have a new cookbook for sale. Time for the supper is 5:30 p.m., price is $8, with children under 11 free.

The Historical Society Museum has cataloged and arranged exhibits well and many have labels. Curator Larry has been the biggest donor of exhibits, and his brother, the treasurer, has arranged funding from Wal-Mart where he works. The president heads the Research Committee. One member has surveyed the local cemeteries, another chairs the Finance Committee. While many members have passed on, the society is still vital. Do join and help out.

WMSC Senior Players return

Senior College Players of WMSC return for their sixth year with a weekend of theater on Friday, Dec. 2, from 7 to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 3, from 7 to 9 p.m. Performances will be held at the McLaughlin Science Center, Trustees Auditorium, Gould Academy, Bethel.

Lynn Arizzi, director, said, "All but one of the 16-member troupe, Cayte Vogt, are veteran Senior College Player Thespians." She added Senior Theater is based on the premise that participation does not require memorization of scripts. However, after six years, Lynn claims, "Their talents and abilities have grown into an extremely successful drama experience. While some use scripts, others do not. You will be entertained with an evening of super-polished performances."

For the debut of Bethel's "twilight series," the audience will be treated to "Almost the Bride of Dracula" by Dennis Snee. Cast includes, Norman Millard, as Dracula, Lorrie Hoeh, as his mother, and his women, Joanne Morse, Tineke Owunga and Carole Timberlake. Lynn Mason and Joe Arizzi play Timberlake's parents.

"While Shakespeare Slept," by Tim Kelly, is about young William Shakespeare in his early years played by Ross Timberlake. The cast includes Barbara Dion, owner of the Inn, Rosabelle Tift, serving girl, and heroines in his dreams played by Carole Timberlake, Roberta Taylor, Joanne Morse, Lorrie Hoeh, Tineke Owunga and Arita Zitoli. Lynn Mason gives the prologue.

"Creative Dating," by V. B. Leghorn, casts two ditsy broads, Carole Timberlake and Tineke Owunga, and the bank manager, Norman Millard. Bank customers include Joe Arizzi, Cayte Vogt, Carol Campbell, Lynn Mason and Roberta Taylor with Read Dickinson, Walter Brough and Ross Timberlake as policemen.

"The Essence of Mature Sensuality," a mime conceived by Patricia Puckett with Douglas Hill, features the return of mime, Carol Campbell, who mimes to the music of The Stripper!

"One Tennis Shoe," by Shel Silverstein casts Ross Timberlake trying to convince his wife, Joanne Morse, that she is becoming a bag lady. Read Dickinson is the waiter. "The Third Scourge," by Vin Moreale, Jr., features Read Dickinson plagued by the computer age.

"Whose Turn Is It" by Philip Potak, casts Walter Brough and Joe Arizzi as two old codgers playing checkers. "The Lemonade Stand" by Bryan P. Harnetiaux features Lynn Mason and Roberta Taylor.

"The Magic Bandit" by Mark Steven Jensen casts Rosabelle Tift and Barbara Dion as two very high-stake rollers.

During set changes, the audience will be treated to the humor of Lorrie Hoeh, Joanne Morse, Arita Zitoli and Roberta Taylor, as they go "Joggin' Along," a play by Dory Kaiser. Senior College Players is a course offered by WMSC. Participants perform the plays free of charge. However, donations are accepted to offset royalty fees for plays. FMI contact Lynn Arizzi at 824-0080.

Bethel Senior Citizens meet

The Bethel Senior Citizens Club met Nov. 9 at the Legion Hall in Locke Mills for their meeting and luncheon with 34 members present. President Caroline Gould conducted the meeting, led the salute to the flag, led members in singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and offered a prayer.

Reports were given by Musa Brown and Arlene Lowell. The 50/50 raffle was won by Becky Keen and the door prize by Florence Morgan.

Entertainment was furnished by "Just The Two of Us" from West Paris who played and sang country and western songs which was enjoyed by all.

The next meeting will be Dec. 14 at the Bethel Inn and will be a turkey dinner. Price is $10 for members. Meeting starts at 11 a.m. Reservations must be made before Dec 7 by calling Caroline at 824-3226 or Arlene at 824-2877.

There will not be an exchange of gifts. Envelopes will be provided for members who wish to donate to Nina Wheeler's Christmas For Families or The Bethel Food Pantry.

Nov. 20 is the date for the Thanksgiving dinner for senior citizens at Telstar High School at 12 noon.

Dec. 13 is the date for the Christmas dinner given by the Bethel Rotary Club for senior citizens at the Locke Mills Legion Hall at 12 noon.

Nancy Mercer made a motion to donate $100 to the Androscoggin Home Care and Hospice and $100 to the Bethel Rotary Club, the motion was seconded by Nancy Willard and it was so voted.

The trip to North Conway was canceled as there wasn't enough interest at this time.

The nominating committee presented the following slate of officers to be voted on next meeting: president, Caroline Gould; vice-president, Fran Head; treasurer, Musa Brown; assistant treasurer, Barbara Mahler; secretary, Arlene Lowell; assistant secretary, Sandra Gunther.

November birthdays are: Ernest Angevine, Nancy Brown, Eleanor Brooks, Ray Cole, Grace Douglass and Maurice Lescault.

Bethel Craft & Wares Fair

As the upcoming shopping frenzy approaches, it is a good time to take stock of what is important to our local economies and to the tradition of the handicrafts produced by mostly home-based entrepreneurs.

The Local Craft & Wares Fair, where 40 crafters and local product producers gather on what is traditionally the busiest shopping day before Christmas, showcases hundreds of mostly handmade, one-of-a-kind items, perfect for gift giving in any season. The Bethel Inn Conference Center is located off Main Street, Bethel, behind the Northeast Bank and the event is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Free horse-drawn wagon rides through Bethel Village will be offered from 2 to 4 p.m., sponsored by Oxford Networks. Interested riders should gather in front of the Bethel Library on the Bethel Common.

For more information on the Local Crafts & Wares Fair and the upcoming Country Christmas in Bethel, call the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce at 824-2282 or go to www.bethelmaine.com.

MAHOOSUC KIDS

Enrichment opportunities for the children in SAD #44

From the Director

Thanks to the Bethel area community for helping MKA celebrate "Lights on Afterschool". Special thanks to all my staff, volunteers, and Board, who took the extra time to organize such wonderful events with students and parents. We look forward to another great year of programs for students that truly enrich the lives of our students.

As the holidays fast approach, we are thankful to all the people that dedicate their time to making our community a great place to live.

Special thanks this November to the TMS/MKA Site that made Veterans Day cards for all the folks at the Maine Veterans Home. Also, to the CPS & WES sites for making all the centerpieces for the NHS Senior Citizen Thanksgiving Dinner on Sunday, November 20th. MKA enjoyed our day at the Chamber Business Showcase and would especially like to thank Don Bennett for a nice write up in the Bethel section of the Citizen! Happy Thanksgiving!

Gould's Lehman named headmaster at Pennsylvania school

On Nov. 14 The Hill School Board of Trustees selected Zachary Gimbel Lehman as the school's 11th headmaster, beginning July 1, 2012. Lehman will succeed Headmaster David R. Dougherty, who will retire with his wife, Kay, on June 30, 2012, after 19 years of service to The Hill, according to a press release from the school.

The announcement was made to faculty, staff, and students by Chairman of the Board of Trustees Thomas McN. Millhiser, Hill '67, and Marshall F. Wallach '61, Vice Chairman of the Board and Chairman of the Search Committee.

The campus announcement was followed by communication with the school's 15,000 alumni, parents and past parents, and friends. The announcement also appears on the school's website at www.thehill.org, along with a detailed account of the extensive search process.

Lehman will come to The Hill after serving for six years as the assistant head of school for advancement at Gould Academy.

At Gould, Lehman also teaches filmmaking, is the head coach for the boys' varsity lacrosse team, and works in the dormitories.

From 2000 to 2006, Lehman was the founding executive director of MetroLacrosse, a not-for-profit community organization that provides integrated lacrosse and character education programs to youth from underserved urban communities in Greater Boston and today has a national presence.

Prior to leading MetroLacrosse, Lehman was an attorney at Ropes & Gray and previously clerked for the chief judge of the United States District Court in Boston.

Lehman serves on the board of the Bethel Area Non-Profit Collaborative.

He served previously on the Massachusetts Governor's Council for Physical Fitness and as chairman of the New England Lacrosse Hall of Fame. Lehman has extensive public speaking experience and presented recently about independent school philanthropy in Asia during the annual CASE-NAIS Conference.

A magna cum laude graduate of Harvard Law School, Lehman also distinguished himself at Dartmouth College, where he earned a B.A. degree in geography, with cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa distinctions.

At Dartmouth, Lehman played varsity lacrosse and football; was an Academic All-American in football; and, as a Senior Fellow, produced an animated film that earned a Student Academy Award from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Prior to Dartmouth, Lehman attended Phillips Exeter Academy for four years, where he played three varsity sports, was a prep school All-American in wrestling, and was graduated with high honors.

"Zack's wife, Amy Cassidy Lehman, is an equally outstanding and charismatic individual who will be a great addition to The Hill family," noted Millhiser.

Amy Lehman earned an M.B.A. from Boston University and a B.S. degree in biology from LeMoyne College in Syracuse, N.Y. The Lehmans have two sons, Mitchell (18) and Griffin (11), and a daughter, Avery (8).

"Among all the candidates considered by the Search Committee, Zack stood out as an exceptionally intelligent, energetic, and entrepreneurial leader, educator, and fundraiser who is devoted to young people," said Wallach.

Referring to The Hill's motto, Wallach added, "Zack understands the benefits and challenges of a family boarding school, and he lives by 'Whatever things are true.'"

"I am inspired by the extraordinary opportunity to live, learn, and lead at The Hill School," Lehman said upon learning of his appointment. "In addition to the exemplary leadership of David and Kay Dougherty, I admire the school's strong reputation for excellence in academics, athletics, and the arts. During our visit to The Hill, Amy and I further experienced the tremendous warmth of the community; the school's pride in its history, traditions, and alumni; and the genuine enthusiasm of a very talented faculty and staff."

"The students at The Hill define the school's true character. They seize opportunities, embrace diversity, champion integrity, and value hard work," Lehman added. "I look forward to partnering with the Board of Trustees, collaborating with the faculty and staff, and rallying support from dedicated members of The Hill School's extended family to ensure the permanence of that distinctive student experience."

"The Hill School enthusiastically welcomes Zack and Amy Lehman and their three children," Millhiser said. "We confidently look forward to a vibrant future of continued excellence under the leadership of Zachary Lehman."

CIVIL ACTION
DKT. NO. RUM-RE-11-39

THE SUMMIT CONDOMINIUM OWNERS ASSOCIATION, Plaintiff

KELLEY A. BYRNE and TODD H. BURKE, Defendants

On the Motion of the Plaintiff for service upon the Defendant, KELLEY A. BYRNE, in this action by publication, this Court finds that this is an action by the Plaintiff against the Defendants for foreclosure by civil action of a condominium association lien on real property owned by the Defendants in the Town of Newry in the County of Oxford and the State of Maine, being the same premises conveyed to the Defendant by Warranty Deed dated July 27, 1995, which is recorded in the Oxford County Registry of Deeds in Book 2240, Page 306, that said action may affect the Defendants' ownership of said real property and may result in a deficiency judgment against the Defendants, and that the Defendant, KELLEY A. BYRNE, cannot, with due diligence, be located or served by any other prescribed method of service.

It is therefore, ORDERED that the Plaintiff may make service by publication upon the Defendant, KELLEY A. BYRNE, in accordance with the provisions of Rule 4 (d) (1) and (g) of the Maine Rules of Civil Procedure.

TO THE Defendant, KELLEY A. BYRNE:

The Plaintiff has begun a lawsuit against you in the District Court which holds sessions at Rumford in Oxford County. If you wish to oppose this lawsuit, you or your attorney must prepare and file a written Answer to the Complaint within 20 days after the date of final publication of this Order. You or your attorney must file your Answer by delivering it in person or by mail to the office of the Clerk of the District Court at 145 Congress Street, Rumford, Maine 04276. IMPORTANT WARNING: IF FAIL TO ANSWER WITHIN THE TIME STATED ABOVE, OR IF, AFTER YOU FILE AN ANSWER, YOU FAIL TO APPEAR AT ANY TIME THE COURT NOTIFIES YOU TO DO SO, A JUDGMENT BY DEFAULT MAY BE ENTERED AGAINST YOU IN YOUR ABSENCE FOR THE MONEY DAMAGES OR OTHER RELIEF DEMANDED IN THE COMPLAINT. IF THIS OCCURS, YOUR EMPLOYER MAY BE ORDERED TO PAY PART OF YOUR WAGES TO THE PLAINTIFF OR YOUR PERSONAL PROPERTY, INCLUDING BANK ACCOUNTS, AND YOUR REAL ESTATE MAY BE TAKEN TO SATISFY THE JUDGMENT. IF YOU INTEND TO OPPOSE THIS LAWSUIT, DO NOT FAIL TO ANSWER WITHIN THE REQUIRED TIME.

If you believe the Plaintiff is not entitled to all or part of the claim set forth in the Complaint or if you believe you have a claim of your own against the Plaintiff, you should talk to a lawyer. If you feel you cannot afford to pay a fee to a lawyer, you may ask a Clerk of the District Court for information as to places where you may seek legal assistance.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that this Order be published in the Bethel Citizen, a weekly newspaper published at Bethel, Maine, once a week for three consecutive weeks, the first publication to be made within 20 days after the date of this Order, and that a copy of this Order be mailed to the Defendant, KELLEY A. BYRNE, at her last known address, to wit: 1109 Pearl Hill Road, Fitchburg, Massachusetts 01420.

THANK YOU!
Although it's impossible to mention each person individually, eternal thanks go out to everyone for your prayers, well wishes, and endless acts of kindness during our "event" and continuing recovery. We'll be forever especially grateful to Loretta, Emmy, Mary, Kayla, Terry, the ambulance crew, and the fabulous staff at CMMC for doing everything "just right." And for all who so thoughtfully ask what they can do for us now, please...those of you who smoke, please try to give it up...for yourself and your loved ones.
